

PREFACE

Dear Friends,

Before one dives into the content of this volume, about the Planets, their characters and odd synchronised affinities, a small, but important word should be mentioned about the style. It is written in the style of “similar”. So, while one might think that the subjects jump about, they are, in fact, connected in terms of Similarity. And that is the ‘logic’ of the pages that concern The Thousand Petalled Lotus of Naughtiness.

Now, to certain folk, the process of thinking similarly, in terms of similarity, has now developed into a way that some people think, entirely....it is a hard process to get into, initially, because the way Our World is structured....but this process of thinking...Similarly, is part of a way to think in opposition. Particularly to suppression, bad ideas, bad technology, bad medicine, bad events, or bad policies, suppressive behaviour. And so i wanted to teach my lad something of this. But he was far too young to understand much. Now he understands more, as he is older. But there is a sort of urgency about this and so i am laying it out because i want to get it down and because i want him to learn. Quickly.

Here, in these pages is part of what has more recently been called ‘critical thinking’. Real critical thinking turns out to be ‘thinking in real practical terms.’ This is not ‘political’ or ideological critical thinking as of Alinsky or Marcuse or Adorno, or other opposition thinkers who leaned towards the right. This is about practical matters that really matter. Of course, when they really do matter to people, then that is called ‘Politics’. Let us remember that the word Politics is from the word Polis. This means: ‘of the people’. i.e. a matter that concerns all people or a large enough grouping to then allow this grouping to have influence over decisions taken for the supposed benefit of the People. This type of thinking seems to really turn out to be “empirical observation”. When one thing is done, roughly, the same way, thousands of times and one gets a similar result, every time, we can say, that this is part of the process of “empirical observation.” We observe something is ‘so’ when we see the same thing repeated. “This does that! That does this!”

When we see things working in a beautiful, surprising curative healing way, do we not feel a sense of wonder and joy? The critical thinking part comes, when we observe things being done in a stupid or harmful or destructive or psychopathic way and then, we, naturally, ask questions. We must!. However, it seems that there are many questions that are now becoming rather important and rather urgent. And they need to be repeatedly asked. Because it really is rather like, corporate thinking is also so much of our thinking. What the corporations built and disseminated is a whole physical and mental infrastructure to seemingly feel safe with and to nestle into. But corporatism has now turned, pretty much into corporate fascism backed by the security state, which is massive. It is the bullying praetorian Cerberus. And we all know what Cerberus was guarding. Corporatism has saturated our societies in many other ways, to the point where it is top heavy and horribly oppressive. But not many can see it. Not yet. But we are all under it’s weight.

To many others, their own academic, compartmentalised education, and later work, often leads into a certain ‘consensus’. This is disastrous for everybody. Consensus is not “truth”. Practical matters concerning humans and the creatures they share the planet with, along with the environment we all live in, ought to be of absolute priority. “consensus” seems to be the key to “corruption”. And, in fact, Dear Friends, our cultures have become utterly saturated with ‘corruption’. And this is a massive problem. Especially for future generations who have to deal with the problems; the very complex chemical and radiological pollution, that we are leaving behind for them.

Therefore, the truth of what state our environment is in and What one can do or not do, to clean up, requires ‘truth’.

We need to know the facts. Not the propaganda. If we proceed from the point of delusion or ‘consensus’ then we are all cooked. One of the big debates that the authorities are so desperate to shut down, are debates around vaccines. A very huge elephant in so many peoples’ rooms. The education about vaccines is very very poor. People are given epithets and slogans by their doctors or other so called health professionals. But these positive epithets for vaccines are lies by massive omission. And this is one example of where the rub really is. Aye!

We should really be and could easily be ensuring clean water, clean air, uncontaminated soils, freedom to speak and freedom to get on: Without censure from powerful groups made more powerful, because they can censure. We need to be able to surf the internet without millions of corporate monopoly and regulation heavy restrictions. These things are what we must now seek.

Otherwise, trade dies. Businesses die. Because restrictions and regulations kill confidence. (A very good recent example were the punitive measures taken by the IRS in the USA against people who were of a nationalistic or patriotic ilk. And So the IRS literally targeted and fined these people. So that they found their lives being swamped by government bureaucracy which is like getting stuck in napalm. And we are talking about millions of different individual businesses. Mom and pop type outfits) People need to fly in order to create and ascend. And the people who are holding them back are miserable and mean spirited and are not in any real way, outwardly altruistic. And those who make these suppressive or oppressive laws that hurt every one are truly abusing their power by trying to control what people have access to. Therefore that is just not freedom in any way shape or form. That is abuse of power. It is suppression that is being carried out upon all of us.

And we all now see this being blatantly waved in all our faces by the thoroughly corrupted and, now, evil, establishment. And so this just an appeal for Freedom to move without being thoroughly restricted, harmed or harming others. Freedom from searches, that are as intrusive as they are, now. Freedom from the endless surveillance by the frankly disgusting fascistic security state that is not answerable to anyone. Except the monopolies. Because they get all their bills paid by them.

Data Destruction seems to be the name of the game. We are the Data. And they seemingly wish to simultaneously harvest all our data while they try and destroy us with things above, things below.

And so we should be free to not to be herded by greater powers. Power must be benign and altruistic not predatory and destructive. Power is currently pyramidal in it's levels and form. Even if the altruism means doing nothing and just letting be. Respect. Something that comes with time...but we ain't got a lot of time, now, Dear Friends...and, paradoxically, we have all the time in the World. Hence these pages.

* * * * *

Here, we are taking a, somewhat, sideways look at Human problems and the way Humans interact with each other and their environment and we look at solutions. Some of the solutions on offer come with the problems, themselves... And so, we look at these through the discipline of the number 7.

There are many questions that can be answered by using the pattern of the number 7. Two, however, are tackled here. The first concerns the names of the 7 days of the week. We are looking at the origins of how we mark the 24 hour periods of time. We all refer to them on a daily basis, without thinking where the names of our Days of the Week come from. The second, and no less exciting aspect, was to prove that all substances correspond, in an uncanny way to the character, behaviour and properties of the Seven planets of Antiquity after which the 7 days of the Week are named.

Here, we are looking deeper through, and into the cosmic wormholes of our history and our general human personalities. We look into Time with the 7 days of the Week. We look into the physical flesh of the Human Body as a map with the help of the theories that come to us from India, the 7 Chakras. In looking at this bodily map we see the 7 Planets of Antiquity are assigned various organs systems and modes of physiological function. And, as an interesting comparison, we also look at these massive orbs of rock and gas that we seem to be revolving around. The Seven Planets.

Many of you, Dear Friends, may have seen charts, drawings or renderings of the Planets, as represented in the Body. Many of these charts and drawings are from the pre enlightenment era. They come to us from India or Persia or Egypt or China and are pre European voyage of discovery i.e. pre 1450. But they filter through to us today because, somewhere, deep down, we enjoy having our rational minds challenged. We see these, in books or on the walls of people's houses, online or while we are studying something. But we barely investigate why people equated the Planets to parts and systems of the body or why we say the names but do not connect.

And we must remember, that our rational minds have been 'educated' by rational corporate scientism, and what were originally small cultures, have been adopted by governments as their medium for controlling their seething masses while they continue to foster and develop and take money from big business. Who they essentially work for. Rather than actually working for The Planet and it's inhabitants.

These are as well as the behaviour of mass markets and how they sweep us along in their tide of making profits so that the ones who are doing the sweeping the rest of us on can live lifestyles that are beyond mere comfort. These lifestyles foster this need to control others, more. Rather like an addiction to a drug. This addictive feeding is actually harmful, unnatural, unnecessary and a huge waste of time and energy.

Of course, we now know that there are certainly more than 7 planets in our Solar System. However, for most of human history until the last 300 years or so, it was only observed that there were 7 planets i.e points or orbs of light that could be seen in different positions in our day or night sky that are moving about. As opposed to being fixed. We take a look at these orbs and reassess what they might mean to us and for us. We barely acknowledge them, but they have influence.

The purpose of The Thousand Petalled Lotus of Naughtiness, is to promote insight and connective understanding into many of the thorny problems that are being faced by the present and coming generations of humans and the environment they share with others. As these pages unfold, all, or at least, all that is relevant and important, will become apparent.

The reader is encouraged to dive into the strange substances that are within these pages. A jewellery box, a treasure chest, a pandora's box of our subject. And our subjects, here, are the 7 Planets of Antiquity and a little of their interpretation as a medium for understanding Our World. Our incredible, beautiful World.

It is our treasure chest. Our thing to covet and nurture....It is utterly beautiful and we should all realise this: consciously, now and always. But so far, we only de-grade it. That has to stop. So this is a plea to ALL PEOPLE, Dear Friends, to tell their friends about how we must nurture Our World instead of just being predatory monsters that are out of control and have almost no restraint. Because we are thoughtless. Our unthinking attitude is what we all must focus upon if we are to save our beautiful planet from being destroyed.

The origin of this book came from studying the other medical systems of Our World that do not involve pharmaceutical medicine: patent medicines made from chemicals or plant, animal or mineral extracts.

Of course, we have to include pharmaceutical medicine because there is just so much of it. It is ubiquitous and causes many more problems than it seems to solve. Therefore, we cannot ignore it. Much as many would like.

Many of these other medical systems that come from indigenous cultures realise that the stars and planets, as well as all the substances in our environment, all have connection with the organs and systems of our bodies. As well as the emotional and spiritual life of humankind. Some are general, others more specific. Dandelion is definitely primarily a Liver remedy. On a secondary level Dandelion is a Bladder herb. The Liver generally comes under the auspices of Jupiter. The Bladder comes under Venus. These two are completely different characters. But they are also connected in very subtle ways. As our pages move along, we touch lightly, upon the medicines that come to us from Western Herbalism, Native American medicine, The Eastern Oriental perspective, the Ayurvedic lens, and briefly, ancient Egyptian and Tibetan.

This book is meant to be an overview. Hence the rushing, running, walking, perambulating, strolling, sitting and moving on through our subjects. Fractions of which have entire libraries and disciplines and industries that belong solely to them. I am trying, perhaps, be outside and look on and in. Nothing more. However, as you will undoubtedly see, I am most definitely on the side of free will, free speech and right to be the best that we can be without harming others, and to be able to trade fairly in open markets and to be honest, without corporate, religious, political, legal or other psychological propaganda which is actually hindering the development of mankind, terribly.

This sort of book could be a template for other, similar volumes. Although, it is, generally, very international.

A book of 7. Many of the subjects here, the trees and herbs, are local to the Author. This is only because of experience. We cannot help but be subjective. Other potential volumes could cover such important local topics. Local to those in their own special locations. The template for this book could, perhaps, be used as a general educational tool to connect people living all over the world with a resource that helps them understand the interconnection between them, the plants and creatures and rocks around them, the environment/ climate then the Planets. There is no ideology.

And that is the key. For we humans have been looking in so many of the wrong places for our internal and external peace. For instance, we need species that can conserve and 'generate' water. These could then be a simple matter of 'knowing' what the planets are, and how they are 'KEY' to how we not only survive, but ascend. We then can dispense with all this automatic conditioning pounded into us from a very early age, by corporations or religions or their government minions.

Hence, part of the inspiration for these pages comes from a fictional work: 'The Man who Planted Trees.' by Jean Giono. As the man who planted these trees was 'careful' and premeditated. He planted enough trees in a dry landscape to alter the weather. The way he planted these trees was so 'reverential' but in such a great way. He would plant trees so that water 'came' to these once dried out barren areas. To change the ecology, from desolation back to life. This sort of miracle does happen. Currently many areas on the plateau of Iran which have been mostly dry for many centuries are beginning to become green and trees are appearing more widely, and the area seems 'greener' because there are simply more plants. Therefore something is changing in the ecology. A formerly difficult place to grow crops is becoming easier.

Another inspiration came with Dorothy Shepherd's book: A Physician's Posy. Which was a series of portraits about Healing Plants. The author, having been a gardener for some years, noticed how some plants benefitted and others antagonised. They all do seem to have their friends and enemies too. It is rather remarkable.

Once our materials, selected in further chapters, have been explained in this more natural way, then, the same can be explained through historical and economic examples. All the while i attempt to remain fairly systematic and as observant as possible. Observation is a very important part of the scientific method. And i do my best to be as observant as i can with the purely flawed human skills i have.

After a while, of this type of thinking, then a much greater spirit or sense of 'connection' can occur. Planet-wide. Living in urban environments is taking all of us away from nature. This 'separates' us. It is so difficult to truly observe. We are in such a hurry, that we miss so much.

This idea of equating substance with the Planets comes from the practices of Medical Astrologers. These are not just people who may have called themselves 'Chaldean' or were adepts of the Kabbalistic texts or were proficient at Astrology and also at gazing at the Stars and noticing that when certain things happened in the sky, events on Earth also happened, oddly, during or after. Although, the Chaldeans too, feature. But in all fairness, These pages are World Wide (I humbly apologise to any country I did not get to).

However, sorry to disappoint, but this is not an Astrology book. It nods to Astrology in Mars ~ Creature ~ Scorpion and The Sun ~ Creature ~ Snake. In these, we take a brief look at the Western zodiac and the Chinese zodiac. And certainly Astrology and Astronomy are mentioned. We do know, most certainly, That the Zodiac are most definitely "the greatest story ever told" but we are passing through on these journeys. We are looking at useful aspects. Their stories run concurrent with our stories and our histories. But for now, concentrating on just the Seven Planets is quite enough.

Although, as you may start to notice, the esoteric references, although there, they are only there to re enforce the original idea. Which is: Do the Seven Planets have relevance? How can we view or see them or hear taste touch or smell them? And so this might turn out a bit visceral in places. Because, throughout history, life has been really tough. So it is only fair that the next generation are prepared and may well be able to come up with many other natural more harmonious solutions for our problems through simple low tech fixes.

This volume concentrates on such practical things as the health or sickness or utilitarian properties of all our "substances" as well as their composition and their odd and, very often, necessary places in our world. Where appropriate, we look at our "substances" as medicines. But in many ways we look at our "substances" as worlds in themselves, to explore. It just being 'useful' these portraits of materials show us many new ways to look at what, where and how we are all doing things upon our Earth, that we can change, for less. But not less happiness or joy. Just less stuff. If one is a billionaire and already has a house and two cars but also has a collection of Lamborghinis? Of course it may keep a few high end engineers in work. But to want to have so many, to just show off while maybe nearby there are people starving and freezing cold on the streets, homeless or placeless? That's all. It just seems pointless to have so much more 'stuff' than one really needs.

And, ever we return again and again to the problems of monopoly capitalism. It is not about a redistribution of wealth, it is about improving the poverty of attitude we all have about 'our natural environment'. This is certainly not a political tract, either, as human politics is utterly flawed as a system of achieving harmony for all. Human politics is a wall to protect the interests and assets of the business and landed classes. They are protected by laws drawn up by lawyers who use lawfare to get what they want. Lawfare favours only the class behind that wall, often very rich people.

One of the main threads running though The Thousand Petalled Lotus of Naughtiness is the fact that we all live in a 'natural world'.

So, why don't we have 'Natural Law'?

Because what we actually have is warfare by all means, especially by Law. And so the obvious thing would be to create horizontal, intentional societies based on practical common sense for the the good of all as well as the good of the species and of course for the good of our planet? seems dumb to have to ask.

As these chapters unfold, one will realise that the mechanisms of business and science and the ideologies of politics and religion are used to increase, keep and maintain monopolies. This top heavy crony kind of trade is not real “free trade” as markets should : could practice. Real Agorism. Single contract business between two parties. without government or corporate interests intervening. Crony capitalism or corporate fascism is oppressive and only a few truly benefit: while they exploit the hell out of everyone and everything. Therefore, everyone and everything else suffers. That entire exploitive attitude totally stinks. Monopolies are very bad for the health of the planet. This may be stating the obvious, but we all need to be constantly reminded. Because we so easily forget and are so easily distracted.

Through the lens of our various “substances”, these volumes look at aspects of our culture, and world, that we see little of, even though most of it is staring us in the face. It asks questions about how ‘trade’ can be conducted without destruction. And without the dominance of monopolies. Although monopolies function, and are ubiquitous, they are expensive, because the drive is always to make profit...not to produce a beneficial product. Products that should just, not only benefit the individual, but how they might help the environment and create better social harmony. Or, wait for it, whether these products should even be produced at all? Now there’s one for the libertarians and the environmentalists.

We do have plenty of ‘change’. These pages are about how we can halt and heal. And after, renew. Which is also change. Renewal may seem difficult, but humans surmount incredible challenges to get somewhere or to do something or achieve something. So why can we not turn our collective and our individual minds to healing our Planet? Is this rocket science? Part of the reasons for this is that we are simply not educated enough. and this has been largely to do with all the very successful commercial networks and institutions that are ‘selling’ to us. All day long.

These pages are deliberately looking at things that are there, but for the most part, we ignore. Or, these things are ‘hidden’. Almost completely. And by way of interesting addition, we attempt to look at historical figures, stories and glimpses of the psychological, the mythical and the spiritual within all our Planets and their “substances” and thus within ourselves. “As above, so below”. It has ever been thus.

And so, within these pages is part philosophy. (never, in my wildest dreams, did i think that i would write what is a practical historical philosophy book doubling up as a survival guide) As a lot of fundamental questions will be discussed. It is part survival guide. The plants in this book are life savers. Within these pages are many natural practical tips that should set some people to becoming ‘spiritual gardeners’. For, that is really what we NEED.

The Earth, Our Earth is our treasure chest. But it is also where we must live. So, surely? We must learn to look after our environment as a first priority? and learn to improve it, naturally? So that it really is fruitful and does multiply. But not in an insanely chaotic destructive way?

This can be so that Our Earth radiates throughout our little corner of the galaxy in a hugely positive way, to others who love Our Earth as much as we all really should do. One cannot achieve happiness through slavery or by oppression or through exploitation of others or by suppression.

The traditional shape that would describe the short history of humans, as a form of graphic representation, would be a Pyramid. But a shape that would allow humans to truly progress and ascend, to the renaissance we all know could come, would be a Spiral. As far as frequencies are concerned one tends not to get Pyramid shaped waves. We know there are jagged and square waves but, in nature things tend to be ‘more rounded’ One will most always detect waves that are often Spiral in Nature. The power structures that mankind has used throughout it’s short history have always been Pyramidal.

Throughout human history there has been an anointed or crowned being who commands adjuncts, noble servants and minions. They, in turn, command the rest of us in many subtle ways. Through layers. (through lawyers, more like) These days, through commercial pressures, as opposed to pure force, like it was throughout much of history. But because we are almost hypnotised by these commercial pressures, we have almost forgotten that “NATURE” exists.

As these volumes have developed, one realises, Dear Friends, that it is the Foods, the Metals and the Materials of Conflict that are destroying our planet. The Trees, Herbs and Creatures are generally healing it.

So the only real suggestion to all of you, Dear Friends, is to turn the direction of Humankind toward an Empathy driven Arboreal Localised culture...with horizontal government ...We get rid of none of our Human drive. But we must focus it upon nurturing and renewal as opposed to constant destruction and oppression. We also must continue to press home truth to power. To the absolute maximum. This must not relent. For they never sleep. Neither must we. The power elite get away with more than just murder. That pales in comparison to what they actually do. And what they have been responsible for.

It is obvious that big centralised corporate government is a disaster for all strata of folk. At all levels. Because it is supporting even more destructive corporate structures. Which are often the surface, and much of the deeper infrastructure of most nations. Whenever governments enact legislation, there is often a huge imbalance created which somehow makes poor people poorer and rich people richer at the expense of the poor and the environment. When a government enacts a legislative bill, they often have to create a bureaucracy to enforce this bill. Once it has been passed. This means people are appointed. But not elected. Therefore if the purpose of the bill affects millions of people, but there is no accountability because bureaucracy cannot be held accountable, then, one has massive continuing, further imbalance. And that is very dangerous for literally everything. (this is what has happened to the EU the USA and to most government structures certainly since WW2, subsuming of representative government by a massive unelected bureaucracy)

We must create localised horizontal civic societies, that are accountable to the people they affect, With common sense morals and much less regulation...These need to be created and properly and openly debated and renewed. They need vigour and vitality and must be dynamic but also cautious and watchful as well as ever renewing. But, not through corporate or governmental coercion which is wasteful and stupid and cruel.

And concurrently, As we strip our world of Trees that hold in soils. What is needed, is for humankind to plant lots of lovely Trees, all over Our World and nurture them. Nurturing is what is missing from Our World. The Trees will help hold in soils and create soils. They will help heal us. They must be indigenous to the areas they originated in.

This is to actually allow us to 'return to understanding nature' like some of the shamen or the druids may well have. And if we are to keep growing as a species or as a population, literally, then, we really need soils. And proper soils. Not soils interfered with by chemical agents made by petrochemical corporations. We must all become 'one with nature'. In the very deepest levels. Sounds utterly hippy dippy. But look around you Dear Friends. You know, that we all need to change. But, we are all driven, are we not?

We may move to the Stars, one day. But before we do, we have to get ourselves to becoming the very best people, the best beings we can be, without delusion. Rather than succumbing to the chemical and radiological sludge our wonderful corporate masters have created for us. Truly matrix style. For, other beings may not be so tolerant of our childish, wilful destructive behaviour. We have, collectively, over all our history, exhibited sheer violence towards ourselves, to each other, and almost everything on our beautiful planet, which may also, like The Sun, kill us, at any moment.

It is man's 'interference' or 'intervention' in literally every aspect, every minutiae.
This is the biggest problem we all face.

We may nurture ourselves, but we nurture others less and we nurture nature, barely. That is what has to change. To that end these pages are about our Materialism which is almost entirely based around artificiality. Which is not really that nurturing or even real. We have constructed cultures outside Nature. And that really has to change.

There are various dates, further on, that seem to pop up with some kind of regularity. The period starting from approximately 1850 is our marker, here, to the acceleration of man's technical domination of our beautiful planet. But there are other periods and regions of human history that we visit more than once because they resonate again and again or are so important, that we must see them as great markers in our general education.

If we know that human events are repeated 'similarly'. Then, we understand that it is our inner natures that make these 'similar' events, occurrences, actions happen. However, simultaneously most of our events are in fact governed from a long way. i.e. from the Sun or the Moon. But these forces in themselves do not degrade as much as the thoughtlessness of elites and the way they view and treat our World.

These tides of historical happenstance occur or are a result of something that happens in our environment. And this is the key to these volumes...Humans and the Environment. All throughout, the main player of our story is our environment. Yet we barely acknowledge it. Unless the weather is violent. This too, must change if we are to continue.

So, this is a 'pill made of light' to you. Not just a 'red pill' Many of us need waking up and need to stay woke. and that is very hard in these times.....we are bombarded with millions of layers of nonsense. All that ephemera makes us somnambulant and docile, when we need to be aware and awake. The majority of the human race is a baby being walked around the park. This volume is our way of stripping a lot of nonsense away and taking a long hard look at “how we are” and what can possibly change for the better.

And, when we are looking to our interesting pantheon, we are just anchoring these as examples to finding solutions. to ourselves, to the problems created by very thoughtless greedy individuals who need to know so much better what they do....right in front of us....right before us. It really does seem like the solutions that man invents and uses for living are just killing everything. Just an observation of a being who has lived over half a century within this fleshy suit.

Each chapter of our little voyage is a separate journey; not necessarily joined to others in any meaningful way; other than to illustrate their correspondence with The Planets. However, that is not to say that there are not connections. There are rather strange and remarkable ones. In researching and writing this volume, we have found every substance, creature, thing, to be of immense depth. No matter how low or disgusting. They are showing us. Divining the will of the Universe and being our teachers. If we were to understand.

All has a purpose. All has value, no matter how low or high. Some say that this is THE DIVINE and that, one day, we will see on each DNA strand and subatomic particle, the words:

“COPYRIGHT: EL-ISIS-ALMOVISHNU-THOR-RARTEMIS-JEZEUS”

Just the majestic perfection of nature is something to behold in awe. Humans are doing their very best to reverse this incredible beauty of nature. Anti nature. This is largely down to the fact that Humankind thinks it can own everything and therefore control it. This also has to change. Or else, we just export our madness to other worlds or destroy ourselves, pointlessly, for nothing. Then, Dear Friends, What is the purpose of humans? Or is nature just vomiting out genetic fast breeder experiments? Is nature always cruel? is there a kind side? Or are we thinking in slightly unrealistic altruistic terms? Have we asked? What does Nature want from us?

So, we know we are capable of great destruction. Now is the time for great healing and renewal. Nothing less will do. In this, there must be a ‘true’ Purpose and a ‘true’ Direction. The artificiality of chemical pesticides, for instance, is causing huge environmental health problems. The artificiality of living in a machine culture is causing huge psychological problems and huge environmental problems.

And, it must be pointed out, that these problems are caused very largely by corporate and state manipulation of everyone else and quite often, also, of themselves.

The corporations have created mass epidemics of chronic sickness.

Worldwide. On purpose. Through their products

If we can walk upon a true path, literally, that rough over grown path that we can just squeeze through, then we will find that ‘we can’ really clean up and heal and nurture our Earth and create so much happiness. And so much health.. This happiness will radiate. The same way our Sun radiates. It is obvious now, that the fact that government has legislated for corporations and against the environment and the people living in it, that it is time for a new paradigm. A new reality. A better reality.

And so, I have laid it, attempting to get to the ‘essence’ of what is needed to be understood, for each substance. For each one of our seemingly disconnected materials I have in effect, stretched each one, so that more can be revealed to us of how the substance behaves and therefore, some of how we are. And quickly. What we find, is we can be like the things described. Rather closely, in relation to our behaviours and attitudes.

Some of the ‘problem’ “substances”, the “materials” featured in these pages, also present solutions. Proper real practical solutions that are free of ‘consensus’ which is really ‘corruption’. That’s the paradox of part of Our World. Many of the things featured in these pages can kill. But also cure. And so we have to know some level of ‘temperance’.

to know how these things can best be used without unnecessarily harming other living things. Over two hundred years ago, Thomas Paine wrote pamphlets that became verbal firebrands for the American Revolution (1765 - 1783). We hope that the following words may serve as firebrand to light the way for a return of common sense, humour, courage, determination, patience, civility and practical natural innovation. To all people. To one another. because, now: "the questions are piling up". But not in deference to tyrants or abusers, in any way. Then, we will ascend that spiral. We go forward and the universe will become our friend.

BALANCE.

It is not rocket science. But we are forgetting.
So, i have attempted to write something that 'changes perception'
so that we ALL may see anew.

I present to you, Dear Friends, Wherever You may happen to be, on Our Beautiful Earth:

The Thousand Petalled Lotus of Naughtiness.

(Editor's/Author's note: Dear Friends, being the omni-dimensional beings that We are: We have seen many things in this Universe, and that we know All there is to know. We are All that has been.... is now..... and ever shall be. Thus, we are. Being!! SVAH HA! In all places, at all times, in all forms. May this continue to be so with the greatest Love!! Yet, we do tend to "forget" also. And so, we turn, today, to an interesting series of observations about the young, hugely vulnerable and largely unconscious species, known as: Human Beings.

There are, of course, multiple ways, paths and modes of physical and psychic transport through which we can travel and experience the Planet Earth. Here, though, we will use the discipline of the number 7. Through this interesting cosmic number we can view these beings of great potential and their relationship to their planet. Their Earth. Which, of course, Dear Friends, is Our Earth, too. Our omni dimensionality precludes this. But for the 'forgetting'! where, on some worlds, in other spheres, some of us are still fixing a hole where the rain gets in.

And so our journeys through the number 7 are to 'remind' us. So that we may just seal all within the expanding Spiral that is All. Therefore, a reawakening must take and is taking, place. It is our discipline. For the space of time that we have, to view and to feel, we can see and feel the Planet Earth, in all it's incredible glorious beauty and horror. In seemingly, equal measure. Is it not funny? in an amusingly philosophical way, how paradoxical humankind are toward their world?

Previously, Presently and Afterwards, we will all meet up for lunch at the restaurant at the End of the Universe and discuss our interesting findings on Human Beings and the very beautiful Planet Earth with our Dear Friend: D, and so many others who we Love whom we have all missed and are so looking forward to catching up with. Until we coalesce again, Dear Friends! please enjoy the very constructive clues pepper potted throughout these volumes as well as the light and the darkness; the incredible joy, the sorrow. Of one-ness of The Thousand Petalled Lotus of Naughtiness.

Until we Renew, Dear Friends! )
